- 25X1X 1. [REDACTED] Constanta on 9 September. Customs control consumed two hours, during which all the personal belongings of the crew, together with all binoculars and cameras, were sealed in an empty cabin. The crew's money, however, was left in the captain's safe under his own responsibility.
2. Although shore leave was granted, not more than sixteen men were permitted ashore in every twenty-four hour period. Shore parties first reported in a group to the Maritime Station where their town passes were issued and their own identification papers impounded until their return to the ship, which was required to be no later than 10.00 p.m.
3. At the ship's departure, customs control again lasted two hours, during which crew and passengers were searched aboard the ship.
4. At Burgas, which the vessel reached on 10 September, the customs control was much more lenient and no restrictions were placed on shore leave for the crew.
- 25X1X 5. [REDACTED] vessels appear to have less difficulties with the port authorities of Constanta and Burgas than ships of other nationalities.
